Walking into Petinos D.D.O., located at 3520 Boulevard des Sources, Dollard-Des Ormeaux, Quebec H9B 1Z9, the menu immediately signals a commitment to both cozy comfort and generous portions, making it a standout for brunch-lovers and hearty eaters alike. The moment you sit down, you know you're in for a treat - and the Petinos D.d.o menu delivers on that promise.

Starting with the “À-côtés / Side Dishes” section, it’s clear that Petinos offers plenty of flexibility for building your perfect plate. If you’re in the mood for meaty additions, you’ll find options like Choice of Bacon (3), Sausages (2), Ham (1) and Bologna (1) - perfect for turning a regular breakfast into something more indulgent. On the lighter side, extras like Nutella, Avocado Extra, Bechamel, and Smoked Meat let you customise in playful ways (why just bacon when you can have avocado or bologna?). I found this section useful when I wanted just a little extra on the side - for example, adding avocado to my toast turned a good dish into a personal favourite.

Moving to the “Carte-santé / Health Card” section, Petinos shows it hasn’t forgotten the lighter side of brunch. Here the menu features dishes like Avocado Toast, Bowl of Fresh Fruits, Avocado Salmon Toast, and Bowl of Fresh Mixed Berries. If you’re looking for something fresh yet satisfying, the avocado salmon toast caught my eye: a crisp toast topped with creamy avocado, smoked salmon and perhaps a hint of lemon - a delightful contrast to the heavier meat-loaded plates. The mixed berries bowl also offered a refreshing palette cleanser between richer bites. It’s a smart move by Petinos to include this “healthier” section alongside the indulgent options - everyone in my brunch group found something to like, whether they wanted comfort food or a slightly lighter fare.

The “Assiettes combinés / Combo Dishes” section lives up to its name by offering value and variety. Dishes such as St. François Combo, Petinos Combo, Mirage Combo, Cardinal Combo, and Boise Combo mean you can pick a bundle of favourites without having to think too hard. From my experience, combos are especially great if you’re sharing with someone or you’re indecisive about whether you want waffles, eggs or poutine. The Petinos Combo I sampled included a mix of eggs, potatoes, bacon and a waffle half-portion - and it really satisfied the craving without committing to a full entrée in every category.

But the star of the menu for many is clearly the “Gaufres belges / Belgian Waffles” section. This is where Petinos really lets you play: options include Belgian Waffle with Banana and Nutella, Plain Belgian Waffles, Belgian Waffles with Fresh Fruits and English Cream, Belgian Waffle with Fresh Fruits, and Belgian Waffle with Mixed Berries. I opted for the waffle with fresh fruits and English cream: the waffle was warm, crisp at the edges and fluffy in the centre, the fresh strawberries and blueberries added tangy sweetness, and the English cream brought a comforting richness without overwhelming. For a pure sweet treat, the banana + Nutella version was also a hit at our table. Waffles here feel like a little morning indulgence-perfect for brunch with friends or a weekend treat.

Finally, petitos (so to speak), one of the more unexpected yet very satisfying sections: “Poutines.” Yes - the “Poutines” section features dishes like Pulled Smoked Meat Poutine, Three Little Pigs Poutine, Philly Steak Poutine, Pulled Pork Poutine, Chicken Poutine. It’s bold to include poutine in a brunch/ breakfast-style place, but Petinos pulls it off by offering hearty, savoury comfort. We tried the pulled smoked meat poutine and it delivered: crispy fries, rich cheese curds, a smoky meat topping and gravy - absolutely satisfying if you’re in for something savoury and substantial.

Throughout the menu, what I appreciated was the range - from lighter health-minded choices to indulgent waffles and meat-heavy plates, all under the umbrella of the “Petinos D.d.o menu” theme. The staff were friendly, the portions generous, and the atmosphere casual but vibrant: a perfect place for brunch or a relaxed morning meal. I came away recommending the waffle with fresh fruits and the pulled smoked meat poutine as standout picks, while also noting that the health options are solid for someone who wants flavour without over-indulging.

In short, if you’re looking to explore the Petinos D.d.o menu, you’ll find something for every mood: whether you want crisp, fresh berries and avocado toast, or a decadent Belgian waffle with Nutella or a savoury poutine hearty enough for lunch. It’s this versatility that makes Petinos D.D.O. such an appealing brunch destination - with a friendly vibe, real menu variety and enough “wow” dishes to make the visit memorable.
